

RoHS Directive

The Restriction of the Use of Certain Hazardous Substances in Electrical and Electronic Equipment (RoHS) directive has been revised and requires that all our products be compliant by January 1st 2013. From that date, in order to CE mark our products we have to include a statement of compliance and have evidence to support that statement should we be asked. It applies to any product that is sold in Europe.

In general we believe our products are compliant. A programme of work has been completed to confirm this, which includes surveys of our products and getting assurances from suppliers. Where any non-compliance was found, appropriate corrective work has been undertaken.
